ALL OF THE NAMES, ALL OF THE FACES:

Human Rights Status Report on Leaders and Defenders of Human Rights in the Territories

On May 18, 2018, La Coordinación Social y Política Marcha Patriótica, La Cumbre Agraria, Campesina, Étnica y Popular (The Agrarian, Peasant Ethnic and Popular Summit) - CACEP and Instituto de Estudios sobre Paz y Desarrollo (Institute of Studies on Peace and Development) - INDEPAZ present the Special Joint Report on Human Rights. All of the names, all of the faces, on the status of social leaders, human rights defenders, ex combatants of FARC-EP and their relatives in the affected territories of Colombia.

The main factor of threat and insecurity continues to be the existence and operation of organized crime units who perpetually launch assaults on defenders, social leaders, political activists, communities FARC members and their relatives. They commit massacres, homicides, threats, forced disappearances, physical attacks and extortion, as well as committing various other criminal activity. Among these organized crime groups, special reference is made of the organizations that are the named successors of paramilitary and their support networks¹. This is then followed by the stigmatization and use of military force against social protests and the resurgence of extrajudicial executions and “false positives” committed by agents of the State.

The Colombian government is currently developing implementation of new laws and regulations to address the violence and have agreed to a series of measures within the framework of systematic violence for the exercise of political opposition and the work of the Human Rights defenders. However, today we repeat that to date they have not implemented any effective regulation, nor at the very least, effective regulation in practice. There is evident concern generated by the issuance of regulations that show a material setback for the guarantee of rights for Colombian men and women.

In the midst of this reality and the considerations of these contrasts of the past few years, civil society organizations including Consultoría para Desplazamiento Forzado (Consultory of Forced Displacement) - CODHES², el Centro de Investigación y Educación Popular (Center of Research and Popular Education) - CINEP, la Comisión Colombiana de Juristas (Colombian Commission of Jurists) - CCJ, Somos Defensores (We Are Defenders), el Instituto de Estudios Políticos de la Universidad Nacional (The Institute for Political Studies at the National University) - IEPRI, el Observatorio de Restitución y Regulación de Derechos de Propiedad Agraria (Observatory of Restitution and Regulation of Rights of Agrarian Property), *el Colectivo de Abogados José Alvear Restrepo*³ (Law Firm of José Alvear Restrepo), La Cumbre Agraria, Campesina Étnica y Popular (The Agrarian, Peasant Ethnic and Popular Summit), Marcha Patriótica and el Instituto de Estudios para desarrollo y La Paz (Institute For Development and Peace Studies) - INDEPAZ⁴, el Observatorio para la Protección de los defensores de Derechos Humanos (The Observatory for The Protections of Human Rights Defenders) of the OMCT and FIDH among others, as well as institutions such as the Ombudsman's Office, the Office of the Colombian Attorney General, the Electoral Observation Mission - MOE, the Office of the United

² Report: Analysis of homicides of leaders in Colombia 2016 - 2018

³ Report to the Truth Clarification Commission on patterns of aggression against people who defend Human Rights and the territory in Colombia

Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in Colombia - OACNUDH, The United Nations Peace Mission and the Mission to Support the Peace Process in Colombia - MAPP OAS demand action.

We have continued producing reports that record cases of homicides and contribute in the analysis of the causes of violence against social leaders, human rights defenders and members of the FARC and their families.

Adding to the trend presented two years ago relating to the diversity of reports, analysis and observation on the violence against social leaders, advocates of human rights, their organizations, their communities and ex-combatants of FARC - EP in the reintegration process; this is a positive addition because, the more information there is and the more analysis is carried out in advocacy spaces, communication media and social networks, the more attention and sensitivity of society is achieved and greater pressure can be exercised towards the State.

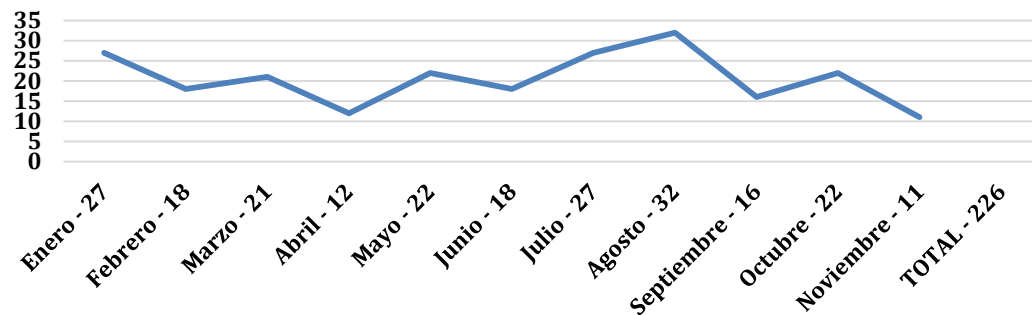

We emphasize that the reports indicate a correlation between the reasons for the violence, areas of affectation, the growth of the aggression, the incapacity of the State and government to stop it and the serious affectation to the peace context. The difference is in terms of figures, which we agree with what was indicated in other reports that have their origin in several reasons: a. Many figures stop only in the field of murders, but do not contextualize a broader or detailed analysis of violence. b. Time periods and references from different contexts are taken. c. Some are based on secondary sources and do not have verification mechanisms in the field. d. There is no criterion unit in the definition of who is a human rights defender and e. different methodologies for the survey, systematization, characterization, analysis and data exposure. Acknowledging the existence of sub-registries, we have unfortunately recorded that during the months of May to November of 2018, the security situation of leaders and social leaders, of defenders of Human Rights has worsened, so we must update the information to present day.

1. Systematic violence against social leaders and human rights defenders and ex-combatants of the FARC-EP in the reintegration process and their families

1.2. Threats

During the analysis period, individual or collective threats, direct and indirect, were presented through pamphlets, calls, text messages to cell phones, messages on Facebook and WhatsApp social networks and e - mails. In the case of threatening pamphlets, there are basically two factors of analysis:

a) Territorial factor: Some were distributed in rural and urban areas of municipalities and others at the regional level.

b) Material factor: There are two types of threats:

- Targeted human rights defenders and / or organizations that support the processes of peace, defending their territory from multinationals and illegal mining and actively participating in the claim of rights through political, legal action and social mobilization and denouncing corruption. Like ex-combatants of FARC-EP in reintegration process and relatives; In which in addition to the signaling, and threats of death express economic rewards are offered for attempt against the lives of people.
- Targeted "thieves", "rapists", "gossipers", "homeless", "drug dealers", "sex workers", "prostitutes", "motorcycle or car drivers", "husbands who regularly beat their wives ", And other negative categorizations of "Social Intolerance"⁵.

⁵ "These expressions of social intolerance are mechanisms of action of paramilitary structures that seek to gain support from social sectors, but also impose a model of behavior". Annotation by Luisa Orozco in review of this text that is worth highlighting for the explanation of the phenomenon.

Most of the threats were received through pamphlets, in other cases the victims were directly approached, received phone calls, received text messages, messages through instant messaging applications, received emails or received messages through third parties.

1.3. Stigmatization and repression of social protest

Although the State participated in the conclusion of the "protocol for the coordination of actions and guarantees to peaceful protest", which was made into law through Resolution 1190 of August 3, 2018, since President Iván Duque took office, the expressions of protest in the exercise of the rights of assembly and public demonstration have been constantly stigmatized by high officials of the National government, in particular by the Minister of Defense.

Likewise, combined forces of the National Police, the Anti-Disturbance Mobile Squadron - ESMAD and the Special Operations Group - GOES of the National Army, have reacted to the days of peaceful protest through infiltration and sabotage and subsequent military repression against peasants, indigenous people, afro descendants, trade unionists and students. These war actions have left hundreds of Colombians injured and/or incarcerated. To date, the relative content, "Protocol for the coordination of actions and guarantees to peaceful protest" is not being implemented, and particularly in regard to the following points: a. Role of the public force; b. Coordination instances; c. Verified missions; d. approaches and principles.

1.4. Forced displacement

Between January and June 2018, the Ombudsman's Office reported that "17,825 people (5,262 families) have been displaced in 55 massive forced displacement events, which occurred due to causes associated with the internal armed conflict in the country. This represents a significant increase in trends of forced displacement and the effects on the population, taking into account that in 2017, 12,841 people were displaced in 51 events registered by the Ombudsman's Office. Regarding confinement, The Ombudsman's Office has registered approximately 11,214 confined persons on this same date, affecting 66 communities in 6 departments of the country, due to causes associated with the armed conflict such as restrictions on free movement, antipersonnel mines, combats and confrontation"⁶.

According to CODHES figures, 126 massive and multiple forced displacement events occurred in the first 8 months of the year. In total, 38,490 people have been affected by the displacements. Of these, 8,376 are Afro-descendant and 7,808 indigenous.

The main causes of displacement have been armed confrontation (43 percent), threats in intimidation (25 percent) and the presence of armed groups (13 percent). On the alleged perpetrators of the displacement, CODHES found that they are, in their order: ELN and EPL, Heirs of Paramilitarism Groups (GHP) and unidentified armed groups.

1.4. Other types of violations

During the year 2018, the following factors of violence

		National Total
Torture		3
Theft of sensitive information		9
Assassination attempts		38
Forced disappearance		11

there have also been reported attacks on the national and regional level, as well as forced displacements and forced disappearances against ex-combatants of FARC - EP in the reintegration process.

In the year 2018, False positives were formally acknowledged by the state. Between the months of January - April, 34 people have been linked to judicial proceedings for rebellion, of which only 6 have been prosecuted.

We want to highlight new mass arrests against leaders who turned themselves in as well as alerts about alleged arrest warrants against territorial leaders and leaders. Between April 20-23, 2018, 30 people were arrested in 5 different departments, among which were recognized territorial leaders, who were charged with the crimes of Rebellion, conspiracy to commit a crime, drug trafficking etc, which implicated membership of the ELN. Like other judicial assembly processes, the charges were weak and inconsistent in supporting evidence, including demobilized statements and information from the military forces, which were relevant at the time of the judge's decision for the arrest warrant.

2. Demands

We insist that the ongoing obstacles of the peace process require new responses to the aggressions that have been perpetuated against the leaders, human rights defenders and communities in the priority territories of the peace agreement implementation. The increase of homicides and aggressions has been denounced by national and international institutions, social organizations and human rights platforms who are demanding measures of prevention and territorial/collective protections, such as the following:

- a) Consolidate the States integral and effective presence in rural areas, especially the areas most affected by the armed conflict to strengthen the recognition and support of the legitimacy of the work by the Community Action Boards, the Afro Colombian community councils and the indigenous authorities⁷.
- b) Strengthening of self-protection units such as the indigenous and conifer guards of the Cauca Pacific, plus the recognition and strengthening of the Peasant and Women's Guards.

- h) Incorporation of the agreements of substitution of illicit crops of all the families that have expressed their willingness to participate and therefore the suspension of forced eradication in those territories
